There are three sectors of Economy :-

- ① Primary Sector :- The primary sector is when we make a product by extracting and collecting natural resources. Farming, forestry, lumbering, fishing and mining are just a few examples.
- ② Secondary Sector :- It includes operations that include the transformation of natural goods into new forms through various manufacturing processes. After primary school, it's time to go on to secondary school. In this case, some production steps are required. The industrial sector is another name for it. Example - we spin yarn and make cloth from the plant's cotton fiber. Sugar or gur is produced using sugarcane as a basic ingredient.
- ③ Tertiary Sector :- Activities that aid in the growth of the elementary and secondary sectors are included in the tertiary sector. These actions do not generate a good in and of itself, but they help or support the production process. It's also known as the service sector. Teachers, doctors, washerman, barbers, cobblers, lawyers, call centres, software businesses, and so on are some examples.
